PRESIDENT HONORS SEA FIGHTS' HERO

A WEST COAST PORT, July 10—For "exceptionally meritorious service, unfailing judgment and sound decision" in the battles of the Coral Sea and Midway, the Distinguished Service Medal, one of the nation's most coveted decorations, has been awarded by President Roosevelt to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, the Navy announced today.

The award was presented by Admiral Ernest King, commander in chief of the United States fleets, in a brief but impressive ceremony held on the quarter-deck of a warship.

While a group of Navy officers looked on, Admiral King pinned the bronze, red-ribboned medal on Admiral Nimitz' blue tunic and read the accompanying citation: "For exceptionally meritorious service as commander in chief of the United States Pacific fleet. In that position of great responsibility he exercised sound judgment and decision in his employment and disposition of units of the Pacific fleet during the period immediately following our entry into war with Japan.

"His conduct of the operations of the Pacific fleet, resulting in successful actions against the enemy in the Coral Sea in May 1942, and off Midway island in June, 1942, was characterized by unfailing judgment and sound decision, coupled with skill and vigor. His exercise of command on all occasions left nothing to be desired."

The citation was signed for the President by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox.

Preparations for the ceremony and movements of the two admirals were closely guarded by the Navy.

At first it was planned to have Admiral Nimitz go to Washington to receive the award from the hands of the President himself. Because the Pacific fleet commander could not be spared from his post for so long a time, the scene of the presentation was shifted to a west coast port.

ARMY CONTROLS CIVILIAN TRIPS TO ALASKA AREA

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10—Under order of the Alaska defense command and Lieut. Gen. J. L. Dewitt, commanding general of the western defense command, civilian travel to and from Alaska went under Army control today.

General Dewitt again reminded civilians desiring to go to Alaska that they must first obtain a permit from the Alaska travel control office which has been established in Seattle, Wash.

Applications must be made 15 days in advance of the proposed trip, and similar permits will be required to leave the territory. No permit will be issued to an enemy alien or to any person of Japanese ancestry, General Dewitt said.

BIDDLE HOPES TO CLINCH CASE AGAINST EIGHT

All Germans Reported To Have Implicated Others In Their Stories

COMMUNIQUE ARE ISSUED

Defense May Start Monday Its Effort To Save Nazi Saboteurs From Death

WASHINGTON, July 10—Prosecutors of the eight Nazi saboteurs on trial for their lives before a seven-man military commission today placed government witnesses on the stand to pave the way for introduction of the spies' confessions of their plot to sabotage America's war effort.

As the trial entered its third day, Attorney General Francis Biddle and Judge Advocate General Myron Cramer of the Army, in charge of the prosecution, strove to complete their case by Saturday night. They hoped to seal the saboteurs' doom by submission of the confessions in which the Nazis will convict themselves of seeking to sabotage this country's war industries.

The confessions tell how the Germans, after spending considerable time in this country, returned to Germany and were taught there in an army sabotage school how to destroy military objectives in the United States before they were brought to American shores by Nazi submarines. The confessions were obtained voluntarily from the prisoners by FBI agents after their capture.

Each implicates other While persons attending the trial were sworn to secrecy and threatened with contempt proceedings if they talked, it was learned that every one of the Nazis implicated at least one of his fellow conspirators in their separate confessions. The spies obviously pointed accusing fingers at each other after they were nabbed by the FBI.

It was reported that they talked voluntarily and freely, some of them apparently hoping for leniency. But Biddle and Cramer have demanded the death penalty for them all, and the court is empowered to have them hung or shot.

None of the spies knew what the others had said since they were kept in separate rooms as they "sung." The saboteurs also are kept in widely separated cells in the district jail cellblock taken over by the army for military prisoners.

Waiting to testify at their trial was middle-aged Mrs. Agnes Jordan of Chicago. Other Chicago witnesses, including Mrs. Gerda Melind, 24, also are awaiting a turn on the witness stand. Mrs. Melind is the ex-girlfriend of Herbert Hans Haupt, 22-year-old Chicagoan and one of the eight saboteurs on trial. Both Mrs. Jordan and Mrs. Melind have been escorted by soldiers through the wooden barricade in the Justice department hall leading to the trial room. But whether they actually testified was not known. However, they were being kept in Washington whether or not they had testified.

THREE NEWSMEN CALLED AWAY FROM DESERT WAR

LONDON, July 10—Three British war correspondents in Egypt have been recalled to Cairo from the desert to attend an inquiry in connection with "serious difficulties" caused by their dispatches, the Evening News said today.

They were Ralph Walling of Reuters' news agency, Clifford Webb of the London Daily Herald and Aubrey Hammond of the London Daily Sketch.

Exact nature of the complaint was not known.

Seized As Spy

FEDERAL Bureau of Investigation agents have seized a 29-year-old German-born American citizen, Herbert Karl Friedrich Bahr, aboard the diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm, on charges of violating the espionage laws of the United States. According to the F. B. I., Bahr, a former brilliant student at a Buffalo, N. Y., technical school, had been trained in a special espionage school in Germany and had been furnished with $7,000 in American money for his passage and for "securing military information." Bahr, the F. B. I. said, was trained in the use of secret ink writings as a medium for sending information back to Germany.

POWDER PLANT BLAST PROBED

Two Men Injured In King Company Explosion Near Lebanon, Ohio

LEBANON, July 10—Warren county authorities today investigated an explosion at the Corning mill of the King Powder company which injured two men.

The blast occurred in one of the small isolated units of the powder plant near Lebanon last night. The injured workers, Everett Feamer and Turner Harrison, were taken to a Cincinnati hospital.

Feamer suffered leg injuries and Harrison burns. Lee Wilder, at work in the same building, escaped injury.

The blast was confined to one of many small buildings that comprise the powder plant at nearby Kings Mills. Across the Little Miami river a munitions plant to be operated by the same company is under construction.

Residents of Lebanon, Mason and Morrow reported feeling the force of the explosion. In the absence of an official statement, it was believed that war production would not be seriously hampered.

Two years ago an explosion in another building at the King Powder company operations killed three workers.

GERMAN FEARS OF COAST RAID OBSERVED AGAIN

LONDON, July 10—Further indications of Nazi fears of an allied invasion were seen today in disclosure that General Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Von Rundstedt, Nazi military commander in France, and General Friedrich Christiansen, German commander in Holland, are making a joint inspection of Dutch coastal defenses.

The new visit to Holland of Von Rundstedt, charged with the defense of the entire invasion coast from Norway to southern France, was reported by the Netherlands news agency.

Shortly after touring Holland in April the Nazis instituted new military and police measures following which 96 prominent Dutchmen, accused of conspiracy, were executed.

29-Year-Old Student Taken From Ship; $7,000 Bribe, Expense Money Found

NEW YORK, July 10—Thoroughly schooled in the Nazi technique of spying, a 29-year-old German-born American faced possible death today because he turned his back on his father's adopted country and sought to betray the United States.

He is Herbert Karl Friedrich Bahr, brilliant 29-year-old student who was arrested on espionage charges during the exhaustive search and questioning of refugees who recently arrived in this country abroad the diplomatic ship Drottningholm.

It was not until 500 of the liner's 942 passengers had been questioned that federal agents fell on the Buffalo, N. Y., exchange student who, while studying in Germany, succumbed to the lure of Nazi agents and became schooled in Germany's espionage system.

When his education in this shady work was complete, the Nazis provided him with $7,000 in U. S. currency and the proper credentials and headed him for America to secure and transmit back to Germany information on the American war effort and military affairs.

Bahr's arrest and confession, according to federal agents, disclosed the elaborate preparations the Nazis made for protection of their spies. Bahr, scholarly and BUFFALO, N. Y. He admitted the $7,000, most of which was found in his possession, was for his passage, personal expenses and to "loosen tongues" of Americans who might know some military secrets of interest to Germany.

The Gestapo, wishing to safeguard the spy, provided him with a complete history of a "Jewish family which could no longer be traced." In the event he was questioned or ran into difficulties, he was to claim that he was the sole survivor of that family. Sale of a stamp collection possessed by that family was to have netted him the $7,000.

Bahr also was coached in preparation of invisible ink and the writing of messages secretly on the backs of innocuous appearing letters for mailing to Switzerland and South America and eventual transmission to Germany.

AIR RAID WARDENS AND FIRE WATCHERS TO MEET

Air raid wardens and fire watchers will meet at the high school at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening to resume training under direction of J. A good attendance is desired since raid warden and fire watcher duties are important under the defense program.

MORE LABOR PEACE—One-day strike of 2,000 miners at the Vesta No. 4 pit of the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation, at Washington, Pa., ended with miners returning to work pending union-company negotiations; labor dispute terminated at the Babcock and Wilcox company plant in Bayonne, N. TUBELESS TIRE FOR BIG TRUCKS TO SAVE RUBBER

AKRON, July 10—Invention of a heavy-vehicle tubeless tire, resulting in an estimated seven percent saving in the rubber content of the conventional casing, tube and flap ensemble, was announced today by John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich company.

"Use of a specially-designed locking member which retains the air in the casing is the secret of the new development," Collyer said. He added that tests have demonstrated the tire's usefulness and ability to perform under all sorts of difficult road conditions.

ANOTHER BIG RAIN HITS CITY; TRAFFIC SLOWED

Another "goose-drowner" rain swept Circleville and Pickaway county Friday before noon, marking the seventh consecutive day that precipitation has been recorded here. The rain was so heavy that water was running over curbs in some parts of the city and traffic was slowed when storm sewers could not remove the water fast enough to keep streets cleared.

BODIES OF 20 MINERS FOUND

Morgantown, W. Va., Blast Traps Men; 50 Escape To Surface; Probe Begins

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 10—Smoke-blackened rescue squads, battling for hours through debris and flames, today found the bodies of 20 miners killed when an explosion ripped through the No. 2 mine of the Pursglove Mining company at nearby Scott's Run.

Joseph Stuart, mine manager, announced that all but 20 of the 70 men in the mine at the time of the blast last yesterday had escaped. Earlier it was feared the death toll would be greater since many survivors re-entered the shaft to aid in rescue work.

Inspectors from the U. S. Bureau of Mines in Pittsburgh, Pa., Waynesburg, Pa., and Fairmont, W. Va., hurried to the scene and joined state police and mine officials in an investigation.

Caught Behind Flames

The twenty victims were trapped behind a wall of flames four miles inside the bore. Some survivors thought the blast might have occurred in Pennsylvania, since the mine tangle is little more than four miles from the West Virginia-Pennsylvania border.

Rescue squads worked all night and located the bodies after the fire that followed the explosion had been extinguished. Because of the wreckage in the pocket, the rescuers estimated it would be several hours before the victims could be removed.

Hundreds of relatives and friends kept an all-night vigil at the mine entrance awaiting word from the rescue squad of seventy-five.

Mine officials said they could not explain the cause of the blast since all precautions had been taken for safety of the miners. The bore was inspected and declared safe less than a fortnight ago, they said.

The mine is only a short distance from Osage where last May 56 miners lost their lives in a similar explosion.

19,900,000 MUST BE PUT IN WAR INDUSTRY, ARMY

CHICAGO, July 10—America's need of manpower was given sharp emphasis today by Brig. Gen. Frank J. McSherry who declared that 19,900,000 persons must be added to war industry and military personnel before the end of 1943.

To meet this requirement, said Gen. McSherry, who is director of operations for the War Manpower Commission, the nation will have to draw on an untapped potential labor supply—29 million housewives.

Gen. McSherry spoke at the opening meeting of the manpower conference and job clinic in Chicago, the first of its kind in the nation.

He said the situation now demands that industry hire older semi-skilled and unskilled workers.

Between now and the end of 1943, he said, 8,600,000 persons engaged in non-essential production and civilian service industries will have to give up their jobs for new ones, and in most cases this will require much training.

Stressing again the labor shortage, Gen. McSherry pointed out that the Chicago area alone will have a shortage of at least 100,000 workers when war production hits its peak.

HITLER THROWS BIG TANK FORCE AGAINST SOVIET

Timoshenko Hurls Soldiers Against Flanks Of Von Bock's Attackers

NEWS REPORTS CONFUSED

Activity Being Speeded Up In Desert; Bombers Knock Out 50 Axis Vehicles

By International News Service Russian forces have beaten off three powerful German assaults on the Voronezh sector of the front where the Nazis massed several hundred tanks in a determined effort to force a crossing of the Don river, a Soviet communique announced today.

The war's greatest tank battle raged along the Don. More than 2,000 German tanks and as many luftwaffe bombers and fighter planes were reported thrown into the struggle by the Nazi high command.

In Berlin a military spokesman declared that bridgeheads had already been established on the east bank of the Don at several points, and that the Germans were determined to push on eastward to the Volga and split the Russian armies in two.

An Exchange Telegraph company dispatch from Moscow said the Germans had crossed the Don at two points Thursday and had ferried at least 100 tanks across the river barrier. But Russian artillery and furious bombing assaults had prevented the enemy's bringing over reinforcements.

Nazis Isolated, Slain

Meanwhile the small forces that crossed at these points and elsewhere were isolated and were being methodically annihilated, the Russian accounts declared.

Marshal Semyon Timoshenko has massed tanks and guns and is smashing at the flanks of the German wedge driven deep on the Kursk-Kharlov sector. But in spite of these counter-assaults Von Bock appeared to be slowly widening the breach.

At a late hour this afternoon, with what is probably the greatest mechanized battle in history now raging around Voronezh, the military situation was roughly as follows:

1—The Germans have pushed as far east as Rososh, representing a gain of 100 miles since the enemy launched the offensive from Kharlov.

2—The enemy is using as many as 2,000 tanks in single sectors in the all-out attempt to reach Voronezh and sever the vital railway line connecting Moscow with Rostov and the Ukraine.

3—Fighting is in progress on the eastern bank of the Don although the main German force is still on the western shore, constantly harried by Russian Stormo-diver bombers in its effort to effect a crossing.

4—Voronezh is still in Russian hands, but the woods and countryside surrounding the great Ukrainian industrial city is a junk-yard of burned-out and blasted tanks and motorized vehicles.

Red Star frankly admitted that the situation at Rososh is "most tense."

The pace of the fighting in Egypt has begun to quicken following a lull in the ground fighting for several days. A communique from Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's headquarters said British mobile columns (Continued on Page Three)

IMPORTANT POST MAY BE GIVEN TO ADMIRAL LEAHY

WASHINGTON, July 10—Reports were current in diplomatic circles in Washington today that Admiral William D. Leahy, former American ambassador to Vichy France, may soon be appointed to a post which will be tantamount to coordinator of defense.

In this role, Admiral Leahy is expected to act as an adviser to President Roosevelt on the war effort and other government departments for the purpose of obtaining information on their work and policies.

FEW COUNTIANS MUST PAY FOR SURPLUS WHEAT

About 1,000 Issued From AAA Office With 600 Yet To Put Out

HARVESTING IS DELAYED

Some Have Paid Penalties, But Most Stay Within Their Allotments

Even though most farmers of Pickaway county have not threshed their wheat as yet, most of them have obtained their farm marketing cards from the AAA office. Some 1,600 farmers are included in the AAA program this year and to date approximately 1,000 have received their marketing cards for the 1942 wheat crop.

Under participation in the government program a farmer must have his marketing card before he can sell or dispose of his threshed grain.

With present weather conditions many of the farmers have been set back considerably in their plans for combining and threshing the grain, but since they already have their cards the grain can be shipped immediately from the fields, thus avoiding any storage complications at the elevators.

Several farmers have paid their penalties on crops in order to obtain marketing cards, but the office has explained that most of the farms are within their allotments.

Our William (Pappy) Fischer is the very best of what they call "good sports." Some of the boys of up camp way, near seven or eight miles as distance goes, were down town here the other evening and try ever so hard in swift walking they couldn't make it back to camp in time to avoid a penalty for keeping over time hours and maybe draw a potato peeling job. So Mayor Hines, who had done some soldiering once himself, knew just what to do about it and Pappy Fischer with his perfectly good truck was very willing, when consulted, to get the boys back to camp on time and this he did with the many good wishes from the boys who had so kindly helped.

Questionnaires Go Into Mail For 45-65 Group

Distribution of Selective Service occupational questionnaires to 2,540 men in Pickaway county who registered in the 45-65 class was started Thursday when the office placed the first group in the mail. Men in this age group registered in April and, even though they are not liable for military training under present laws, they are required to fill out the questionnaires and return them as soon as possible to the board. The deadline on returning the papers is 10 days after they have been received.

Questionnaires on occupational skills have been sent to all men, except those in military service, who registered in the first, second and third registrations. This final classification will complete the program unless members of the fifth class are subjected to similar regulations.

Stating that the questionnaires are merely issued in an effort to catalogue the skills and experiences of American manpower, the national Selective Service board has pointed out that the papers should not be confused with the regular Selective Service questionnaire. The latter is to classify men as to military abilities. The data contained on the occupational index is forwarded through state directors to the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel in locating persons with certain professional and scientific qualifications and to the U. S. Employment Bureau for locating persons who have skills in critical or essential occupations.

SHADEVILLE DANCE HALL HIT IN ARMY'S REQUEST

Colonel O. M. Baldinger, commander of the Lockbourne air base, made a request in Franklin county Probate court Thursday for closing of the Brysonian dance hall at Shadeville.

In letters to Sheriff Jacob Sandusky, Judge C. P. McClelland and J. W. Cleary, chief enforcement officer of the state liquor department, the officer said he found the hall to be "most objectionable."

Judge McClelland is withholding action on the request pending further investigation. In making the request the commanding officer stated that he desired the hall to be closed since he was "most desirous of protecting the conduct and morals of the personnel of a large military installation."

At the colonel's request the A. F. of L. has promised to tear down immediately a sandwich stand erected at the West gate of the base.

DELINQUENT CITY SEWAGE BILLS ON TAX DUPLICATE

Pickaway county tax books were opened this week with many residents receiving statements on their payments for the last half of 1941. Persons may pay their assessments at the treasurer's office any time until the books are closed, September 30.

City residents who are delinquent in their sewage rental assessments are also being billed for this figure on the tax duplicates and unless the total amount is paid the county may take up a lien on the property owner. A recent enactment of city council placed the collection of delinquent accounts in the hands of the county office under state law.

Aleutians Vital To Uncle Sam In Case Hitler Wins In Middle East

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 10 — Behind the Army-Navy attempts to blast the Japs out of the Aleutian Islands is more than natural antipathy to having an enemy on American soil or the fear of an invasion of Alaska.

These are important. But, in addition, events in Egypt may mean that more than ever we shall have to use these vital stepping stones of the Aleutian Islands to carry the war to the heart of Japan.

To get the full significance of the picture it is necessary to recall that ever since Pearl Harbor there has been an honest difference of opinion among U. S. war strategists as to whether we should concentrate on fighting Japan in the Pacific or Hitler in Europe.

At one time, shortly after Pearl Harbor, high-up U. S. Naval advisers worked out an elaborate war plan, which is no longer a secret, for concentrating almost all our naval strength in the Pacific and making a direct attack on the Japanese islands—at a time when the Japs had their lines dispersed to Manila, Singapore and the South Seas.

But the plan meant leaving the Atlantic coast relatively unguarded, also virtually abandoning convoys to Britain and Russia. In the end it was decided that the Russian front was all-important and must be supplied at all costs. The wisdom of this decision seems to have been borne out by subsequent events.

JAPS WORRIED

However, those who urge the all-out war in Asia have persisted, and their argument has been strengthened by recent developments. One is the fact that the Japs, obviously scared at the prospect of a second front in Asia, are fighting feverishly to clean out the Chinese before China gets important help from us. Fear of a second front in Asia also was why the Japs nipped part of the Aleutian Islands.

Main development, however, was the defeat at Tobruk and the serious Nazi threat to the entire Near East; for if the Near East falls, with its vital supply route opened by American railroad engineers from the Gulf of Persia to the Caucasus, then it may be absolutely imperative to open new supply lines to Russia via Alaska and Siberia.

And, even more important, the entire focus of the war, so far as the United States is concerned, may turn to the Far East; for, if Hitler secures the oil of Iran, Iraq and Mosul, it may be the wisest strategy to knock Japan out of the war first—because the Nazis will have the resources to continue for a long time.

DOUGLAS AT WHITE HOUSE

At the White House they are telling this joke on Melvyn Douglas, the movie star, who is now a hardworking Civil Defense official. After he finished his latest picture, "They All Kissed the Bride," he and his wife, the former Helen Gahagan, received an invitation from the President to visit him.

When they got to the White House the Douglases were assigned separate rooms. But not being particularly keen about the separation, they doubled up that night in one big four-poster.

Next morning, however, Mrs.

Douglas chased her husband back to his own room.

"Muss up your bed," she commanded, "so nobody will suspect you slept in here."

RAILROAD MAN KILLED IN D. T. AND I. ACCIDENT

CHILLICOTHE, July 10—Conductor Harry Miller, 63, of Springfield, was killed Thursday in a crash of two railroad cabooses. The accident happened 12 miles Southwest of here near Summit Hill on the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton line. Miller was riding in a caboose being pushed by two locomotives when the unit plowed into another caboose of a standing freight train.

Otto Davis, of Springfield, was cut and bruised in leaping to safety from the first of the two locomotives. His fireman, John Ferguson, Springfield, also jumped and was unhurt.

The crew of the second locomotive remained in its cab.

BERLIN-TRAINED AMERICAN SPY GRABBED BY FBI

Herbert Karl Bahr, said To Be Most Intelligent Of Agents, Under Arrest

collapsed when F.B.I. and other federal agents submitted Bahr to intensive questioning.

300 Still Held

While his is the only arrest resulting from the Drottningholm questioning, which lasted six days before the boat was cleared, 300 of her passengers still are being interrogated at Ellis Island.

As a German-born naturalized citizen, Bahr may be tried under the espionage law which carries a death sentence for conviction, or under the articles of war as a spy invading the United States, legal authorities said. If tried under the articles of war, it was pointed out, it would mean an Army trial similar to the one now being given the eight Nazi saboteurs captured by the FBI after they were landed on the eastern coast by Nazi submarines.

Bahr, ranking highest in scholastic standings in the Buffalo, N. Y., technical high school where he won his athletic letter eight times, and on graduation, was valedictorian of his class. He won a free tuition scholarship to Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy and a Scabard and Blade scholarship from the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

Following his graduation from Rensselaer in 1933 with an engineering degree, he was given an American exchange student's scholarship from the institute of international education for study in Hanover, Germany. From this point forward, however, he forgot his American training and became involved with Nazi ideology, according to FBI officials.

In Germany, the official government student organization, "Studentwerk," became interested in him and paid him 120 reichsmarks a month while he attended the technische hochschule (technical high school). Agents of this organization also saw to it that Bahr was introduced to members of the German espionage service.

Brother in Plane Plant

While his widowed mother, Mrs. Minnie Bahr remained in Buffalo with a younger brother, George, who found employment in the Curtiss-Wright aircraft plant there, the scholar was sold the idea of joining the Nazi espionage service. He gave up his private studies and attended the highly specialized classes of the German espionage school where every subterfuge known to spies was taught.

This, it is believed, was late in 1939, at about the time his family received their last letter from him. In the missive, he wrote that he wanted to "finish" his studies before returning home. It was the last word his mother and brother had from him until notified of his arrest.

SPRINGFIELD'S BLACKOUT TEST "100 PERCENT"

The city was blacked out from 10:29 until 10:46 o'clock last night with only a few industries working on vital war materials being permitted lights.

LEGION PATROLMEN WILL TRAVEL WITH STATE UNIT

James Shea, captain of the American Legion Reserve Patrol, brought back an interesting report from the conference of Patrol chiefs of this district held in Columbus Thursday evening. Representatives from 14 central Ohio chapters of the new organization met at the confab to discuss plans for making the activity uniform throughout the state. All members of the reserve unit will spend two hours on active duty with regular state highway patrolmen to acquaint them with operations of that department.

OPEN LETTERS

TO CITIZENS

FRIENDS: Circleville's Civilian Defense program has been moving along in splendid style, and many persons are well trained for various phases of the important work. However, many others who have made pledges to take training as air raid wardens and fire watchers have not fulfilled their promises, and as a result this phase of defense work is lagging. A class will be conducted this evening at 7:30 in the high school building for persons enrolled as raid wardens and fire watchers, and I hope that everyone who has promised to become a member of this branch of the defense service appears for training. Civilian Defense work is scoffed at by some because they seem to feel that the time will never come when they will be called on to protect their homes and those of their neighbors. Regardless, all should be trained in case of emergency. I will be pleased if tonight's gathering for the raid warden and fire watcher class numbers 75. About 25 were present earlier this week for the initial class.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CHURCH-GOERS

MEN, WOMEN: Annual Methodist camp meeting at the Lancaster campground opens Sunday and continues for 28 days. During this meeting many of the outstanding religious leaders of the nation will appear for addresses. The camp meeting this year gives promise of being one of the finest of all times, and I am certain that its success is assured. Many Circleville and Pickaway county folk annually take part in the camp meeting's sessions, and I hope that many more appear at various sessions this year.

TO EVERY ONE

ALL: Hardly a day passes that you do not receive a letter, or more, of one kind or another. What do you do with the cancelled postage stamps that nearly all carry? Do you know that you can save them for the Pickaway Plains Chapter of the Daughters of Revolution which organization will put them to use? That's a fact! The DAR has been conducting a postage stamp saving campaign for a long while, yes, a cancelled stamp saving project, and every day in Circleville enough envelopes carrying cancelled stamps go into waste paper baskets to help boost the DAR's pile considerably. Miss Mary Heffner is directing the stamp project, and she would be willing to call at any home or any office to pick up cancelled stamps that have been saved. She makes calls each month to places where cancelled postage stamps are being collected, and she'd be glad to call for yours. The DAR sends the stamps to its national headquarters where they are being packed for transport to the British Isles where they are being put to use. I am not certain just what kind of work is done with them, but the DAR has a program that is worthy. I hope you will cooperate.

CIRCUITEER.

TO FARMERS

FOLK: With most of your wheat now in stock you are preparing for the annual threshing program. Value of your grain this year is even greater than in times before and you should take no chances in seeing that the work is done. Shortage of labor has been increasingly worse but, through the cooperation of the Employment Bureau, relief office and schools, you are promised an adequate supply of help. Registration for workers at the employment office is important if you are to be assured proper consideration. Do so now, before the work gets too far under way.

CIRCUITEER.

TO ERVIN LEIST

SIR: You are to be congratulated on your appointment to a job at the government air port near Lockbourne. The post is an important one and if the way you have handled the local plant for three years is an example of the work you can do you will have no difficulty in making a success of the government appointment. Your offer to oversee work at the local plant during your spare time is commendable and with council's present position I'm sure it will accept the generous plan. Workers at the disposal plant have been trained so that they can now do most of the duties at the treatment works, if you will run tests and handle routine chemical tests.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SUGAR USERS

ALL: This is the way the additional sugar ration works: Stamp No. 5 has probably been used by this time. If not, it is good up to July 27. On No. 5 the buyer gets two pounds per person, to last four weeks. Stamp No. 6 comes up to use on July 27. That, too, is good for two pounds of sugar per person, to carry over a four week period. Now comes Stamp No. 7, which may be used any time between July 10 and August 22. It is good for two pounds of sugar per person. It is an extra two pounds, over and above the normal ration of a half pound per person per week. The amount of sugar and the time range of Stamp No. 8 will be announced later. The rationing must be continued, because it is the only fair way to get even distribution to all citizens alike. But storage of the sugar now coming in is also becoming a problem. By giving out a bonus now and then, the extra sugar goes into storage in private pantries, and relieves the warehouses.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

WHEN Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Chungking government makes an announcement concerning the progress of its country's war with the Japs, it's accepted in Washington and doubtless at the rest of the United Nations' capitals without a fraction of 1 per cent of its accuracy.

This isn't true of reports from others of the pending conflict's various fields of activity. The British, telling of developments in North Africa, always emphasize whatever gains they've made so vehemently that they're a bit suspected of exaggerating. If they have to admit a reverse, they qualify it almost unbelievably. The Russians, belatedly conceding the loss of some such stronghold as Sevastopol, never fail to remark that, "Oh well, it was left in ruins," and that the enemy's sacrifices were literally appalling.

The Germans do the same thing. Their stories are regarded with a barrel of salt each, anyway. Italy isn't often heard from, hopefully or contrariwise. Coral Sea and Midway As between the United States and Japan there's room for skepticism.

Military and navy men surely know exactly which outfit had a deal the better of the scraps in the Coral Sea and at Midway. The public, though, can't but wonder, if the Japs' defeats in those engagements were as overwhelming as the American press has represented 'em. We weren't LICKED, it's true, but were the results greatly better than a tie each?—so far as actual fighting was concerned. If we WON clean-cut, why didn't we utterly exterminate the opposition? And the Aleutians?

It's all right to say that the Japs' diggings in there were facilitated by Aleutian weather, but why was it any worse weather for us than for the Nippon aggregation?

All this isn't to imply that the United Nations aren't winning in general, but press agencies create considerable uncertainty as to current details.

The Chinese, however, haven't any press agency.

What they accomplish or what happens to 'em they TELL. If they say there's some spot that where they've been thumped, they proclaim it.

If they say they've registered a wallop against the Mikado, the bet's a safe one.

It's a queer country.

Being so close together as they are, and both Mongolians, why aren't the Chinese and Japs brethren? But they're not. Far from it. In the old days of the Boxer Rebellion, the Japs were ardently pro-

Caucasian. Today we and the Chinese are anti-Jap and then some.

When we barred Oriental immigration, we classed 'em together. I'll bet the Chinese could get in now, if they weren't too busy to attend to it. But the Japs? They're saboteurs—cuss 'em!

I've lived among both of 'em. Generalizing, I've liked the Chinese best.

Yet, as individuals, I've had Jap friends who were as close to me as any Occidental. I'd have hated to lose one of 'em as much as I would have a Briton. They're just as civilized as we are.

That Military Class The dope is that we don't need to civilize the bulk of Japan.

We need to civilize its MILITARY CLASS. China doesn't need any de-militarization. It's GOT it. Japan's just ONE GROUP. That disposed of, it's okay.

Seemingly nobody's left out of consideration but the Germans.

And yet, the Germans, as transplanted in this country in past years, have been as respectable local and world citizens as anybody.

How about 'em, as distinguished between assimilated Americans and cetera?

I can't imagine 'em as a different race. Are they?

Well, Adolf Hitler isn't a German, anyway. He's an Austrian.

Nevertheless, Germany fell for him. He's Germany's responsibility.

Obviously nationalities and races don't signify any more. It's a mere issue of human beings.

Recreation Helps Morale During Strain of Wartime

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE STRAIN of living in wartime makes recreation in some form more than ever a necessity. The Puritan tradition which disapproved of idleness or wasting time has gone the way of most Puritan traditions. Psychiatrists have long known that recreation of some kind is an imperative part of the treatment not only of mental patients, but indeed a necessity for the balance of any sane man.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Hobbies of Psychiatrists

I am therefore interested in a bulletin from the Menninger Clinic of Topeka with various chapters written by psychiatrists in which they describe their own hobbies and recreations. One enthusiast about horticulture, another about contract bridge, another about stamp collecting, another about classical music, another about dancing, another about chess, others about mask making, poetry, photography, bird study, etc.

The contract bridge advocate points out that there are 635,013-559,600 possible bridge hands that any one person might have dealt to him and even if a person should live a lifetime of bridge playing and hold the same hand twice, the other three hands would be different and anyway he wouldn't remember the first time, so in his opinion this is a good hobby because at least it won't run out on you. He believes that every air raid shelter should contain a deck of cards.

Each one of these enthusiasts has a great deal to say in favor of his own hobby. I may say, however, that the stamp collector and the classical musician have failed to convince me. I would like to be convinced by the dancing enthusiast but I have long since been warned by the promptness with which one of my dancing partners suggests that we "sit the rest of it out" that there is no use in my attempting to learn the Conga.

Chess as a Hobby

Chess, which Dr. Carl Menninger selects for a favorite hobby, is defended with his usual dialectic skill. He related that when he used to play with another psychiatrist, his opponent would say, "Come on. We must go and wash our minds." He believes that chess appeals to certain people as a hobby because of its aggressiveness and destructiveness. People who do not play a good game of chess perhaps are not mean enough. It is not a pacifist's game. It was one of the favorite recreations of some of the world's military leaders, including William the Conqueror and Napoleon. The real object of chess, according to him, is father murder—in other words, capture and immobilization of the King.

Favors Sitting Down

I am rather attracted to the chapters on mask making and poetry as hobbies. I would feel all right about photography and bird study except that when I pick a hobby, I want one during which I sit down. That is why I am in favor of the hobby of gasoline rationing. I hope it will get to the place where I can go home and sit down forever.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. G.:—What is the cause of constant sneezing during the day and at all seasons of the year?

Answer: Nasal infection either of the sinus or the nasal mucous membrane or perennial allergy from the presence of animals or house dust. I would suspect pet canaries, parrots, rabbits, cats, dogs and horses in that order; possibly a pillow stuffed with rabbit hair is the cause.

F. S.:—If a person has tuberculosis are deep breathing exercises harmful?

Answer: Yes. One of the most important principles of treatment in tuberculosis is rest, especially reduction in the number of inspirations. Deep breathing simply tends to spread the infection from one part of the lung to the other.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 15 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

THERE WAS general luncheon conversation for a time, and then Jerome looked at his watch.

"Sorry to have to leave you," he said, "but I've got some important engagements at the bank. I must be getting along." Again he signaled the waiter. "Let me have the check," he said. "I'll sign it."

"But, Jerome," said Dian, "must you rush off and leave us like this? After all, you're our host."

"Business before hosting!" Jerome, and laughed as though he'd said something terribly clever. "You four just sit here and take your time. We settled old business-men have to forego long luncheon periods."

"Thank you so much, Jerome," Claire said, "for playing host so generously and charmingly."

"Don't mention it!" Jerome said. He patted Dian's shoulder in a possessive sort of way and left.

"Well!" Claire exploded. "Imagine Jerome Carr, the miserly banker, buying lunch for four people! What's the world coming to?"

"Don't be catty," said Dian. "I thought Jerome was very kind."

"Besides," said Paul, "what else could he do but buy and me lunch, when you barged in like you did?"

Bill smiled at Dian and said, "He had to buy me lunch, too. You practically dropped me into his side pocket and made him bring me here."

"And," Dian laughed, "to think the poor man started out to ask only me to lunch with him!" She turned to Claire. "Why were you so eager to locate me?" she asked.

"Oh, it's about my plans!" said Claire. "I'm going to have a dinner for the four of us at the country club, and a picnic out at the lake. I wanted to discuss it while the four of us were all together."

"What's there to discuss?" Paul inquired. "You say your plans are already made."

"The dates," said Claire. "An evening for the dinner that's convenient for all of us, and a day for the picnic which will suit everyone."

"A picnic," said Bill. "That's fine. I've not been to a picnic in years and years. We used to have them every year—my Sunday school class, you know. I can feel my mouth pucker at the very memory of biting into juicy pickles. Funny, but pickles always tasted better on picnics than at any other time."

"Then I shall bring along a jar of Aunt Martha's pickles," said Dian. "You'll love them."

"Then you mean you're all glad to fall in with my plans?" Claire asked.

"I am," said Bill.

"So am I," said Dian. "I think it'll be fun. Four rather nice people dining and dancing together—and then going on a picnic."

"Don't forget your bathing suits," said Claire. "We can swim, you know. There's a bathhouse at the lake." She looked at Paul. "Well," she said, "can't you say something, Paul? After all, I'm doing the entertaining partly because of you."

"And incidentally holding up my honeymoon," Paul retorted.

"Oh, forget that!" said Claire. "There's plenty of time for that after we have ourselves a gay time together."

"My vacation ends on Sunday," Paul reminded.

"What of it? This is only Tuesday," Claire smiled on them all.

"How about dinner Thursday evening, and the picnic on Saturday? Everyone agreeable?"

Everyone was—although Paul showed no enthusiasm to speak of.

"I've got to get home," Dian said. "I just remembered Aunt Martha's got a big candy order. I must do an apron and be her assistant."

Claire looked at Paul. "And you," she said, "should take the rest of the afternoon, Paul, to call on those cousins of yours over near Catersville."

"I suppose I should do that," Paul said reluctantly. "They were pretty swell to me when I was a kid." He eyed Claire. "What are you going to do?"

"Oh, I thought I'd show Bill the places of interest in and around Ardendale," she said. "Mother isn't using the car."

"I'd like that," said Bill. "I may discover some backgrounds to use in illustrations." Then to Dian he said, "Save me some of the candy, won't you?"

"I'll speak to Aunt Martha about it," said Dian.

The party broke up then. At the curb Claire said, "By the way, Dian, your car's big and roomy. How about all of going in it to our picnic?"

"Fine!" Dian said. "Betsy loves picnics."

THREE RETURN

When Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra goes on the air on the Hour of Charm program for Sunday three of its stars, Evelyn, Vivien and Maxine, will come to the microphone fresh from an appearance as guest soloists with the Cleveland Symphony orchestra.

This trio of stars appeared last year with the same orchestra in Cleveland's huge public auditorium and so great was the audience's response that the girls were invited back this Summer.

In addition to welcoming back these instrumental and vocal leads, the orchestra will dedicate its closing hymn of the evening, "Holy, Holy, Holy", to the officers and men stationed at Camp Blanding, Florida.

Farm WAR NEWS

In an effort to avoid a serious problem on the hog situation this Fall, the Pickaway county Farm War Board has issued the following bulletin to farmers in Pickaway county. Livestock farms throughout this area will be especially interested in the facts on the hog market program for the coming season.

There may be serious troubles ahead in hog marketing this year unless we who raise hogs start our heavy marketing earlier than usual. Furthermore, we shall need more pork this Summer and early Fall. I am therefore urging that you make a special effort to encourage hog producers to push as many hogs as possible for early marketing. This can be accomplished by better feeding for earlier maturity.

This year, in the Fall and Winter marketing season, we shall be sending to market a fourth more hogs than last year and five and one-half to six million more than we have ever marketed before in the period from October 1 through April. If farmers should attempt to market in December and January the normal percentage of this increased number it would probably be more than the packing plants and transportation facilities could handle.

We cannot depend upon increased packing plant capacity and an increased number of trucks and railroad livestock cars to handle greater peak marketings because that would take more rubber for tires and large amounts of steel which we must use to build war machines. We must therefore plan now to avoid some of the rush of marketing that normally comes in December and January by starting earlier.

In making plans for marketing more hogs early this year, farmers should plan also to market their hogs at good weights. Market as early as practicable, but do not ship light, unfinished hogs where it can be avoided. The United States and the United Nations will need all of the pork and lard we can produce.

Under wartime conditions we can plan our hog marketings without having to worry so much about what the price is going to be. The government is now buying about 40 percent of the pork and two-thirds of the lard. It is probable that for a year beginning next October the government will be buying about 30 percent of the pork and half of the lard from the greatly increased number of hogs that will be marketed.

The nation is depending upon hog farmers for a large part of the meat supplies needed for our war workers at home; our armed forces on foreign fronts, and for our allies. And hog farmers can help the war program both by producing more hogs and by spreading out marketings more evenly throughout the year.

BIRDS PICK UP 3,000 AID TWO ANOTHER HALF FUNDS IN GOLF TILT ON BLUES SHOW AT SCIOTO

COLUMBUS, July 10—American association race today appeared to be developing into a duel between the pace-setting Kansas City Blues and the Columbus Red Birds, with the latter making the competition tough indeed for the league leaders.

The Blues, however, continued out in front by four full games, but the Birds, winning their sixth series during the current home stay, are slipping ever closer.

Columbus gained a half game yesterday when they split a twin bill with Louisville, while Kansas City lost, 4-3, to Minneapolis. The Colonels won the opener, 6-4, in 11 innings and dropped the nightcap to the Birds, 6-0.

Air Base Chief Tells Importance Of Army Glider Training

COL. BALDINGER OF LOCKBOURNE TALKS IN CITY

Job Of Everyone Is To Win War, Rotarians Told In Excellent Address

TRAINING IS OUTLINED

Qualifications, Salary And Chances For Promotion Are Discussed

In his first public appearance since taking over command of the new Lockbourne Army air base, Lieutenant Colonel O. M. Baldinger gave a very interesting and educational talk at the weekly Rotary club meeting Thursday. Training at the base began Monday with the Army official bringing his immediate staff with him to Circleville to discuss the work now in progress.

Colonel Baldinger came to Lockbourne from Maxwell field, Mississippi, but has spent much of his life in Ohio and is truly a remarkable man. He lived in Marion for 15 years and has the honor of being the man instrumental in erection of Harding's Memorial at that city.

During President Harding's administration, the Army officer lived in the White House, serving as his military aide. He returned then to Marion where he solicited funds for the memorial construction. Since he has spent most of his life in various branches of military service.

Six members of the officer's staff accompanied him to the city. These men are Major R. F. Burnham, training head; Captain William Henderson, intelligence officer; Captain William Decker, chief of replacement department; Captain C. F. Renno, chief of technicians; Captain B. B. Abree, provost marshal; and Lieutenant A. T. Graydon, head of public relations.

Club members were highly pleased with the talk given by the Army man and were permitted to ask questions about operation of the new training center for "commandos of the air" following his speech. The informal discussion included information on recreation at the field, cooperation necessary by local officials in making it one of the outstanding camps of the nation and other points of interest, many of which cannot be published under government protection of figures on the camps size and other vital statistics.

Following is a text in part of the talk given by Colonel Baldinger. "I hope that you people in Ohio are hospitable folk because you may have some unexpected guests in the next few days or weeks—some of those men we are sending up in gliders at our school over near Lockbourne may be landing right in your own backyards. Don't be too surprised when one of our boys sets his ship down in your victory garden—just as suddenly and unexpected as the air forces built our base over at Lockbourne.

Job Of Each Clear

"Your job and my job—the job of every American—is clear: to win this war as soon as possible. And we in the Air Forces believe that the glider program which has just begun out at Lockbourne may be a vital factor in the knockout blow.

"The glider program is brand new; it is expanding. The field at Lockbourne, as you probably know, was begun around the first of April for the use of combat bombardment units. When the War Department decided to expand the glider program and gave it priority in training, the field was turned over to the air forces' training command for use as an advanced glider school. In less than three months after ground was first broken at Lockbourne, the Army had taken over a large part of the field for training purposes, and in only a few weeks the entire field will be completed and turned over to the training units.

"Monday the training program officially began at the field, and that training program will continue until we have completed the job of vanquishing Hitler and the Japs. It was the Nazis at Crete who first showed the world the combat importance of the glider—but it will be America who will finally show the world when and how to use the glider.

Given Short Course

"Men who volunteer for gliding in the eastern part of the country are first brought to Lockbourne where they are given a short course in military courtesy, discipline and other military subjects which will equip them for their life as glider pilots of the Army. During this initial period they are assigned to a unit known as the glider replacement pool.

"On completion of this course, the men are assembled in units and sent out to elementary glider schools located in Minnesota, Wisconsin and North Dakota. There men who have not flown before will be taught to pilot a light "cub-type" plane. When they have learned the technique of flying these small craft, instruction will be given in "dead-stick" landing. This means that they will learn to bring the plane in for a landing with no motor.

"After mastering the "dead-stick" landing, they will be sent back to Lockbourne where they will receive instruction in the use of actual gliders. During the entire course they will also attend ground school where they will be taught such subjects as glider technique, code and meteorology.

The program at Lockbourne is under the jurisdiction of the Southeast Army Air Forces Training Center, and similar programs are being formulated at fields in the Gulf Coast and West Coast training areas. The program now is relatively small, but it has received the "go-ahead" signal and go ahead we will.

Thousands Follow Thousands

"Tens of thousands of young Americans will follow other thousands into the army this year, and there will be more to follow in every year until the war is decisively won by America and her allies. Few of these young men plan to make a career of the army; they are willing to remain in the armed forces so long as the nation needs their services, but they plan to return to their civilian jobs at the war's end.

"These men should not and must not waste the years which are spent in the Army. Valuable training and vocational skills can be obtained while a man is in the service, and this glider program is only another example of the many opportunities which the Army offers. Men who enter the Army must not, however, forget that the primary aim of their service is combat against the enemies of the nation. In this glider program the Army offers an opportunity for training in a valuable combat branch. First of all then the Army will use men already in the service for the glider training.

"But the glider program is open to the civilian too. Any American—and this includes the men who are about to be drafted—between the ages of 18 and 36 is eligible. The civilian can enlist directly into the glider program; they will be given the regular base pay of an Army private, plus 50 percent additional flight pay. Under the new pay bill this means that the lowest pay which any glider student will receive will be $75; men already in the Army who hold ratings higher than private will be paid their base pay, plus 50 percent. All enlisted men in the Army receive their meals, quarters, clothes and medical attention.

Training Period Short

"The exact length of the course has not yet been set, but it will be short as compared with the time required to become a pilot, bombardier or navigator. The physical requirements for entrance are somewhat lower than those set for cadets; for example the visual acuity may be 20-100 without glasses correctable to 20-20. Ask any optometrist and he'll tell you that the requirement is not difficult. The mental examinations are of the aptitude type, with requirements also somewhat reduced from those set for aviation cadets.

"The pay which these men will receive after graduation is not inconsiderable. All of them will be given the enlisted rating of staff sergeant or better, and a selected few will be awarded commissions as second lieutenants in the Army of the United States. In addition they will receive 50 percent in addition to their base pay as long as they are on flying status. They will also be privileged to wear the wings of the Army Air Forces with a special glider insignia superimposed.

"The glider is, I believe, a craft which will appeal to the pioneer instincts of young Americans—the same instincts which developed this great Northwest country as it was known in the early days. Up there in the clouds they just float around—with no motor, nothing mechanical. Carried by the thermal currents, they may remain aloft for hours under favorable conditions. Of course the principal use of the gliders will be in towing operations behind planes with motors. I think that the idea of glider trains in the air also has a real appeal for young Americans. The idea certainly stirred my imagination as a flier when it was first proposed.

Training Handicapped

"I wish that I could invite each of you to pay us a visit at Lockbourne, to watch those ships floating about in the sky. The secrecy of the work and the pressure of the training program makes that impossible. Already we are somewhat handicapped by the fact that hundreds of workers are still on the field completing the buildings which we are to use.

"We at the Lockbourne base are going to live with you and be your neighbors for some time; how long depends on the length of the war."

During the business session of the club the following guests were announced, Dr. C. G. Stewart, C. F. Zaenglein, Charles Radcliff, Ray Alter, Don Walker, Father Edward Reidy and Jay Clark, a new member initiated at Thursday's gathering.

Four former members have been given honorary membership in the organization because of work in defense plants or enlistment in the Army which has taken them away from home. These men are C. Dee Early, Karl Herrmann, Dr. E. L. Montgomery and William Radcliff.
